

Join us to keep the doors open for another hundred years

Calvary Center for Culture and Community works hand in hand with Calvary United Methodist Church to preserve and rejuvenate its historic building, which is both a neighborhood landmark and one of the region's finest and best-preserved Victorian churches. Remarkable stained and leaded glass—including two of the world's largest signed Tiffany windows—and period woodwork stenciling, and murals embellish most of the building. Calvary provides the community with an 800-seat Sanctuary, world class pipe organ, 350-seat Chapel, kitchen facilities and extensive classroom community and office spaces.

Calvary Church was dedicated in 1906. Major work is required to maintain the building as a safe and functional community facility. Calvary Center for Culture and Community is dedicated to raising all of the funds necessary to undertake this work. Donations from community members and major grants from Preservation Pennsylvania, the William Penn Foundation, the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, and other sources have helped build the momentum needed for such a large fundraising effort.

For a full century Calvary Church has opened its doors to the community. If you can help make Calvary Center even more vital for the next century, please send in this donation form.

Help us keep the doors open for another century!
